In Memoriam

Reese E. Marrs

Reese E. Marrs, 56, a retired Diplomatic Security special agent, died July 12 at home in Tampa, Fla., after a long battle with bile duct cancer. He joined the Department in 1986 and during his career proudly protected five secretaries of state, foreign dignitaries and other persons under the authority of the U.S. Code. His TDY assignments took him all over the world, including to Baghdad. He retired in 2009, settling in Tampa, and loved golfing, cars, traveling and spending time with his daughters.
