Corrections

The sentence in September's Safety Scene column describing the storage of carbon monoxide-generating equipment should have read: "Most carbon monoxide-generating equipment is kept outside the home far away from open windows, doors, vents and other occupied areas. Make sure that the equipment is installed and operated according to the manufacturer's instructions and local building codes to avoid carbon monoxide exposure."

Return