

The Recovery Program at Work

Averting a Deepening Crisis

Food for Greece

Emergency shipments of corn and wheat were among the first commodities to arrive in Europe, and the bags themselves were handy for other uses.

The drought of 1947 and the harsh winter that followed put many European lives in peril. Emergency shipments of food, fuel, and fertilizer were essential in the early months of the Marshall Plan.

Coal for Denmark

George C. Easton Research Library

Wheat for the Netherlands

Part of a crate used to ship a Marshall aid commodity to France.

Cornmeal for Iceland