

No. 09-228

The Secretary of State presents her compliments to Their Excellencies and Messieurs and Mesdames the Chiefs of Mission and has the honor to refer to circular note No. 09-138 which announced an exemption from property taxation to real property owned by foreign governments and used as consular staff residences.

The Department also wishes to refer to an October 7, 2009 “Notice to All Foreign Governments” addressed to consular posts by the Law Department of the City of New York, which suggests that the foreign governments that own such property remain responsible for continuing to pay the real property taxes that have been and will be assessed by the City on those properties. In this regard, the Department wishes to inform the Chiefs of Mission that the Secretary of State has clear authority under United States law to exempt from taxation properties owned by foreign states and used as residences for staff of consular posts in the United States. The Department’s June 23, 2009 Determination (a copy of which was attached to note 09-138) provided that exemption, is a valid exercise of United States federal authority, and preempts inconsistent New York State law.

DIPLOMATIC NOTE

The City of New York, however, has challenged the validity of the June 23 Determination in federal court and the court will resolve this dispute. The Department believes that the law is on its side, and although it cannot guarantee the outcome of the litigation, is confident that the court will uphold the Determination.

The City of New York's October 7 Notice states that the property tax exemption is not effective until the Department of State approves specific property as exempt from taxation. This is incorrect. When issued, the June 23 Determination made all covered property exempt, although the Department of State reserved the right to impose conditions, as appropriate, in specific cases. The Department subsequently requested that the Missions identify those properties that they believed to be exempt so that the Department might confirm the property's eligibility for tax exemption. The June 23 Determination nonetheless exempted foreign states from taxes assessed on covered property, prior to the Department's confirmation of eligibility.

Accordingly, pending the outcome of the litigation, the Chiefs of Mission may wish to consult with their legal counsel concerning the proper course of action in light of the United States Government's actions, including this note, and the actions of the City of New York, including matters raised in its October 7 notice.

Department of State,
