Hurricane Matthew on Course for the United States – Update

The Office of Foreign Missions (OFM) continues to monitor the approach of Hurricane Matthew. Hurricane Matthew is currently a dangerous major hurricane and is expected to severely impact the states of Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, and North Carolina over the next few days.

OFM strongly recommends that foreign missions located in those states and their nationals closely monitor public information and adhere to advisories issued by state and local governments. In addition to local and national media outlets, the following websites may contain official information and guidance:
