The United States ITU Association

The United States ITU Association (USITUA) is pleased to support the candidacy of Doreen Bogdan-Martin as the next Secretary-General of the International Telecommunication Union (ITU).

Throughout her distinguished career, Director Bogdan-Martin has demonstrated her firm commitment to bridge the digital divide globally and collaborate with government and industry stakeholders from around the world to achieve this shared objective. An ardent advocate for gender equality, Director Bogdan-Martin, would be the first woman to ever lead the ITU and first American in 50 years. The USITUA is delighted to support Doreen Bogdan-Martin in this historic event.

About USITUA: Established in 2000, the United States ITU Association (USITUA) is an open U.S. industry forum for the discussion of ITU-related issues and the development of U.S. views and proposals on those issues. The mission of the USITUA is to develop consensus private sector views on ITU policy matters and communicate those views to the U.S. Government. At present, USITUA is comprised of 63 U.S.-based corporations, associations and consultants who share a vital interest in both policy matters before the ITU and the effective management of the ITU.
