

TOKYO, JAPAN NISHIMACHI INTERNATIONAL SCHOOL

ASSISTED SCHOOL SPECIAL NEEDS PROFILE

NOTE: School situations can change quickly, particularly as schools face cutbacks to learning support programs due to the pandemic, unrest, and economic uncertainty. For the most current information, work with the REO and school. Information in this document was collected by the Department of State's Office of Overseas Schools directly from the school in spring 2023 and shows the availability of services rather than an assessment of the quality of the services. The profile is intended as a jumping off point for a conversation with the REO and school to understand the best fit for your child. Definitions may vary school to school. If a field is not specified, please reach out to the REO listed below for more information.

Nishimachi International School is a private, nonsectarian, coeducational day school founded in 1949 to serve as a center of education for expatriate and Japanese children. Nishimachi's educational philosophy is grounded in a spirit of internationalism and humanism, which allows children to learn in a supportive environment. Nishimachi provides children with an education in English and a minimum of one lesson per day in Japanese, which seeks to develop international perspective and understanding. Japanese lessons occur daily. Read more on the Overseas Schools Fact Sheet.
