Section 613(b) of the Tibetan Policy Act of 2002 (22 U.S.C. 6901 note)

Pursuant to section 613(b) of the Tibetan Policy Act of 2002 (22 U.S.C. 6901 note), this report covers: (1) the steps taken by the President and Secretary of State in accordance with subsection (a)(1) of the Tibetan Policy Act of 2002; and (2) the status of any discussions between the People’s Republic of China and the Dalai Lama or his representatives. The Department of State submits this report to the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate.

Executive Summary

No formal negotiations between People’s Republic of China (PRC) officials and the Dalai Lama or his representatives have occurred since 2010. The United States continues to encourage both sides to engage in meaningful and direct dialogue, without preconditions, to seek a settlement that resolves differences. The U.S. government remains concerned by the lack of meaningful autonomy for Tibetans within the PRC, ongoing abuses of the human rights of Tibetans in the PRC, and efforts by PRC authorities to eliminate the distinct religious, linguistic, and cultural identity of Tibetans. The United States believes the PRC government must address these concerns to create conditions for a sustainable settlement, which is essential to the long-term stability of the region. The U.S. government has maintained close contact with Tibetan religious, cultural, and political leaders to underscore U.S. support, and has expressed its concerns regarding PRC government actions in bilateral, multilateral, and public venues. Due to the PRC government’s withdrawal of consent for operation in retaliation for the closure of PRC Consulate General Houston, the United States suspended operations of the U.S. Consulate General in Chengdu (CG Chengdu) on July 27, 2020, severely restricting the United States’ ability to maintain access to Tibetan areas. The following report describes activities undertaken by senior U.S. officials from May 1, 2022 to April 30, 2023 to encourage dialogue and create conditions for a sustainable settlement.

U.S. Policy on Tibet

The United States’ long-standing policy is to encourage meaningful and direct dialogue between PRC authorities and the Dalai Lama or his representatives, without preconditions, to seek a settlement that resolves differences. The U.S. government believes that a negotiated resolution that leads to meaningful autonomy for Tibetans and ensures they are able to freely practice their religion, culture, and language provides the best hope for long-term stability in the region.

The United States continues to urge the PRC government to change its policies in Tibetan areas that have created tensions; respect and preserve the distinct religious, linguistic, and cultural identity of Tibetans; and permit Tibetans to express their grievances freely, publicly, peacefully, and without fear of retribution. The United States remains concerned by PRC government interference in the selection, education, and veneration of Tibetan Buddhist religious leaders. The U.S. government continues to call upon PRC authorities to allow diplomats, journalists, tourists, and others to have unrestricted access to Tibetan areas.

Due to the PRC government’s withdrawal of consent for operation in retaliation for the closure of PRC Consulate General Houston, the United States suspended operations of the U.S. Consulate General in CG Chengdu on July 27, 2020. The consulate has stood at the center of our relations with people in Southwestern China, including Tibetan areas, for 35 years. The closure of CG Chengdu has severely restricted the United States’ ability to maintain access to Tibetan areas.
Information regarding human rights conditions in Tibet appears in the Department of State’s annual Human Rights Report and International Religious Freedom Report. Information regarding access to the Tibetan Autonomous Region and other Tibetan areas of the PRC appears in the Department of State’s annual report to Congress pursuant to section 4 of the Reciprocal Access to Tibet Act (RATA) of 2018 (P.L. 115-330).
